

Jill Southerland

Jill Southerland was newly elected in November of 2013 as one of the commissioners for Ward 2. She was born in Grand Rapids, MI, went to college in Wheaton, IL, and graduate school at Claremont University in CA. She is a wife, mother, and grandmother. Her career included teaching elementary and gifted children, being a college professor of Parent Education, managing several college programs and campus sites and being a general manager of a large home owner association. She and her husband Mike have loved their eight years of living in the beautiful Polson area. Jill ran for the city council in order to contribute to the community she loves. She hopes to provide open, positive communication to Polson citizens, as well as to work with the commission to make decisions that will provide positive direction for the citizens and future generations of this community.
